I am familiar with the facts set forth herein and will testify to them if necessary.

Re: Preservation of Documents and Other Evidence
Weber vs. The Bear Stearns Companies Inc., et al., 08cv2870
(ERISA Litigation)

Dear Mr. Solender:

By this letter, you are hereby given notice, on behalf of defendants in the above-entitled action, not to destroy, conceal or alter any paper or electronic files, software, programs or other data generated by and/or stored on computers and storage media (e.g., hard disks, floppy disks, backup tapes), or any other electronic data, such as voice mail, that may relate to the administration and management of the Bear Stearns Companies Inc. Employee Stock Ownership Plan (the "Plan"), which is the subject of the above-entitled lawsuit. Failure to comply with this notice can result in severe sanctions being imposed by the Court for spoliation of evidence or potential evidence.

Through discovery we expect to obtain from you a number of documents and other items, pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including files stored on your computers in connection with the administration and management of the Plan.

In order to avoid spoliation, you will need to provide the data requested on the original media. You should not reuse any media to provide this data.

Although we may bring a motion, if required, for an order preserving documents and things from destruction or alteration, the obligation to preserve documents and things for discovery in this case arises in law and equity independently from any order on such motion.

Electronic software, documents and the storage media on which they reside contain relevant, discoverable information beyond that which may be found in printed documents. Therefore, even where a paper copy exists, we will seek all documents in their electronic form along with information about those documents contained on the media and the software used in the preparation of such documents. We also will seek paper printouts of only those documents, which contain unique information after they were printed out (such as paper documents containing handwriting, signatures, marginalia, drawings, annotations highlighting and redactions) along with any paper documents for which no corresponding electronic files exist.

Our discovery requests will ask for certain data on the hard disks, floppy disks and backup media used in your computers, some of which data are not readily available to an ordinary computer user, such as "deleted" files and "file fragments." As you may know, although a user may "erase" or "delete" a file, all that is really erased is a reference to that file in a table on the hard disk; unless overwritten with new data, a "deleted" file can be as intact on the disk as any "active" file you would see in a directory listing.

Courts have made it clear that all information available on electronic storage media is discoverable, whether readily readable ("active") or "deleted" but recoverable. See, e.g., Easley, McCaleb & Assoc., Inc. v. Perry, No. E-2663 (Ga. Super. Ct. July 13 1994) ("deleted" files on a party's computer hard drive held to be discoverable, and plaintiff's expert was allowed to retrieve all recoverable files); Santiago v. Miles, 121 F.R.D. 636, 640 (W.D.N.Y. 1988) (a request for "raw information in computer banks" was proper and obtainable under the discovery rules); Gates Rubber Co. v. Bando Chemical Indus., Ltd., 167 F.R.D. 90, 112 (D. Colo. 1996) (mirror-image copy of everything on a hard drive "the method which would yield the most complete and accurate results," chastising a party's expert for failing to do so); Northwest Airlines, et al. v. Local 2000, et al., (D. Minn, 2000, Civil Docket Case No. 000CV8) (court ordered image-copying by Northwest's expert of home computer hard drives of employees suspected of orchestrating an illegal "sick-out" on the Internet).

Accordingly, electronic data and storage media that may be subject to our discovery requests and that you are obligated to maintain and not alter or destroy, include but are not limited to the following:

1. Description Of Documents Relating To The Plan And Related Subjects:

All digital or analog electronic files, including "deleted" files and file fragments, stored in machine-readable format on magnetic, optical or other storage media, including the hard drives or floppy disks used by your computers and their backup media (e.g., other hard drives, backup tapes, floppies, JAZ cartridges, CD-ROM's) or otherwise, whether such files have been reduced to paper printouts or not. More specifically, you are to preserve all e-mails, both sent and received, whether internally or externally; all word-processed files, including drafts and revisions; all spreadsheets, including drafts and revisions; all databases; all CAD (computer aided design) files, including drafts and revisions; all presentation data or slide shows produced by presentation software (such as management software (such as Microsoft Project)); all data generated by calendaring, task management and Personal Information Management (PIM) software (such as Microsoft Outlook or Lotus Notes); all data created with the use of Personal Data Assistants (PDA's), such as Palm Pilot, HP Jornada, Cassiopeia or other Windows DE-

Based on Pocket PC devices; all data created with the use of document management software; all data created with the use of paper and electronic mail logging and routing software; all Internet and Web-browser-generated history files, caches and "cookies" fields generated at the work station of each employee and/or agent in your employ and on any and all backup storage media; and any and all other files generated by users through the use of computers and/or telecommunications, including but not limited to voice mail. Further, you shall preserve any log or logs of network use by employees or otherwise, whether kept in paper or electronic form, and to preserve all copies of your backup tapes and the software necessary to reconstruct the data on those tapes, so that there can be made a complete, bit-by-bit "mirror" evidentiary image copy of the storage media of each and every personal computer (and/or workstation) and network server in your control and custody, as well as image copies of all hard drives retained by you and no longer in service, but in use at any time from 2003 to the present.

You may not pack, compress, purge or otherwise dispose of files and parts of files unless a true and correct copy of such files is made.

Similarly, you shall preserve and not destroy all passwords, decryption procedures (including, if necessary, the software to decrypt the files); network access codes, ID names, manuals, tutorials, written instructions, decompression or reconstruction software, and any and all other information and things necessary to access, view and (if necessary) reconstruct the electronic data we are requesting/will request through discovery.

2. Business Records

All documents and information about documents containing backup and/or archive policy and/or procedure, document retention policy, names of backup and/or archive software, names and addresses of any offsite storage provider.

- a. All e-mail and information about e-mail (including message contents, header, addressees and logs of e-mail system usage);
- b. All other e-mail and information about e-mail (including message contents, header information, addressees and logs of e-mail system usage) containing information about or related to this litigation;
- c. All databases (including all records and fields and structural information in such databases), containing any reference to and/or information about or related to this litigation;
- d. All logs of activity (both in paper and electronic formats) on computer systems and networks which have or may have been used to process or store electronic data containing information about or related to this litigation;

- e. All word processing files, including prior drafts, "deleted" files and file fragments, containing information about or related to this litigation;
- f. With regard to electronic data created by application programs which process financial, accounting and billing information, all electronic data files, including prior drafts, "deleted" files and file fragments, containing information about or related to this litigation;
- g. All files, including prior drafts, "deleted" files and file fragments, containing information from electronic calendars and scheduling programs regarding or related to this litigation;
- h. All electronic data files, including prior drafts, "deleted" files and file fragments, containing information about or related to this litigation.

3. On-Line Data Storage on Mainframes and Minicomputers

With regard to on-line storage and/or direct access storage devices attached to mainframe computers and/or minicomputers, defendants and their counsel may not modify or delete any electronic data files, "deleted" files and file fragments, existing at the time of this letter's delivery, which meet the definitions set forth in this letter, unless a true and correct copy of each such electronic data file has been made and steps have been taken to assure that such a copy will be preserved and accessible for purposes of this litigation.

4. Off-Line Data Storage, Backups and Archives, Disks, Tapes and Other Removable Electronic Media

With regard to all electronic media used for off-line storage, including magnetic tapes and cartridges and other media, which, at the time of this letter's delivery, contained any electronic data meeting the criteria listed in paragraph 1 above: Defendants and their counsel should stop any activity that may result in the loss of such electronic data, including rotation, destruction, overwriting and/or erasure of such media in whole or in part. This request is intended to cover all removable electronic media used for data storage in connection with their computer systems, including magnetic tapes and cartridges, magneto-optical disks, CDs, DVDs, floppy diskettes, and all other media, whether used with personal computers, minicomputers or mainframes or other computers, and whether containing backup and/or archive data sets and other electronic data, for all of their computer systems.

5. Replacement of Data Storage Devices

You should not dispose of any electronic data storage devices and/or media which may be replaced due to failure and/or upgrade and/or other reasons that may contain electronic data meeting the criteria listed in paragraph 1 above.

6. Fixed Drives On Stand Alone Personal Computers and Network Workstations

With regard to electronic data meeting the criteria listed in paragraph 1 above, that existed on fixed drives attached to stand-alone microcomputers and/or network workstations at the time of this letter's delivery: you shall not alter or erase such electronic data, and not to perform other procedures (such as data compression and disk de-fragmentation or optimization routines) which may impact such data, unless a true and correct copy has been made of such active files and of completely restored versions of such deleted electronic files and file fragments, copies have been made of all directory listings (including hidden files) for all directories and subdirectories containing such files, and arrangements have been made to preserve copies during the pendency of this litigation.

7. Programs and Utilities

You shall preserve copies of all application programs and utilities, which may be used to process electronic data covered by this letter.

8. Log of System Modifications

You shall maintain an activity log to document modifications made to any electronic data processing system that may affect the system's capability to process and electronic data meeting the criteria listed in paragraph 1 above, regardless of whether such modifications were made by employees, contractors, vendors and/or any other third-parties.

- b. All floppy diskettes, magnetic tapes and cartridges, and other media used in connection with such computers prior to the date of delivery of this letter containing any electronic data relating to this matter are to be collected and put into storage for the duration of this dispute.

Attention: FOIA Request

Dear Sir:

We represent current and former employees of The Bear Stearns Companies, Inc. ("Bear Stearns"). On March 18, 2008, we filed a civil enforcement action under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA") §§ 502(a)(2), (3), 29 U.S.C. §§ 1132(a)(2), (3), for relief on behalf of the Bear Stearns Companies Inc. Employee Stock Ownership Plan (the "Plan"). The action alleges that the Plan's fiduciaries allowed the imprudent investment of the Plan's assets in Bear Stearns common stock, from the period December 14, 2006 to the present, despite the fact that they knew or should have known that such investment was unduly risky and imprudent due to Bear Stearn's high exposure to the subprime mortgage market and improper business practices.

Under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), we request any documents related to the investment of the Plan's assets in Bear Stearns common stock, including the operative Plan documents, documents concerning Plan fiduciaries, and any complaints from Plan participants related to the Plan. We are prepared to pay up to $2,500 for search and review fees. Should the search and review fees exceed this amount, please do not refuse this request but contact me at 212-451-9628 since we may be in a position to pay a greater amount depending on the circumstances then existing.

Very truly yours,

class and individual actions involving the same subject matter. Those seeking appointment as class counsel must identify related litigation in which they are participating. It is important for the judge to ensure that counsel does not have a conflict with class interests.<sup>855</sup>

In many cases, the lawyers who filed the suit will be the obvious or only choice to be appointed counsel for the class. In such cases, the judge's task is to determine whether the applicant is able to provide adequate representation for the class in light of the Rule 23(g)(1)(C) factors.

The judge must choose the class counsel when more than one class action has been filed and consolidated or centralized, or more than one lawyer seeks the appointment. The term "appoint" here means to "select" as well as to "designate" the lawyer as class counsel. If there are multiple applicants, the court's task is to select the applicant best able to represent the interests of the class. No single factor is dispositive in evaluating prospective class counsel. In addition to those listed above, relevant considerations might include

- involvement in parallel cases in other courts;
- any existing attorney–client relationship with a named party; and
- fee and expense arrangements that may accompany the proposed appointment.

21.272 Approaches to Selecting Counsel

There are several methods for selecting among competing applicants. By far the most common is the so-called "private ordering" approach: The lawyers agree who should be lead class counsel and the court approves the selection after a review to ensure that the counsel selected is adequate to represent the class interests.<sup>856</sup> Counsel may agree to designate a particular lead class counsel in exchange for commitments to share the legal work and fees. To guard against overstaffing and unnecessary fees,<sup>857</sup> the court should order the attorneys to produce for court examination any agreements they have made relating to fees or costs.<sup>858</sup> See section 21.631.

855. For an overview of possible conflicts of interest and other abuses (such as the "reverse auction" settlement in which defendant seeks to settle with counsel willing to accept the lowest offer), see sources cited supra note 737 and see infra sections 21.611–21.612.

856. See Third Circuit Task Force Report on Selection of Class Counsel, 74 Temp. L. Rev. 689, 693–94 (2001) [hereinafter Third Circuit 2001 Task Force Report]; see generally supra section 14.

857. See, e.g., In re Fine Paper Antitrust Litig., 98 F.R.D. 48 (E.D. Pa. 1983), modified, 751 F.2d 562 (3d Cir. 1984).

858. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(h) committee note; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(e)(2) (settlement approval); Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(d)(2)(B) (attorney fees motions).

In the “selection from competing counsel” approach, the judge selects from counsel who have filed actions, are unable to agree on a lead class counsel, and are competing for appointment. The lawyer best able to represent the class’s interests may emerge from an examination of the factors listed in Rule 23(g)(1)(C), as well as other factors, such as those delineated above.

A third and relatively novel approach, competitive bidding, entails inviting applicants for appointment as class counsel to submit competing bids. The fees to be awarded are one of the many factors in the selection.<sup>859</sup> Rules 23(g)(1)(iii) and 23(g)(2)(C) expressly permit the court to consider fee arrangements in appointing counsel. Some judges propose a fee structure as a framework for comparing bids for different percentages at different levels of recovery.<sup>860</sup>

Judges in antitrust and securities class actions have used competitive bidding to select counsel and to establish in advance a rate or formula for calculating attorney fees. Studies suggest that bidding may be more appropriate when

- prospective damages are relatively high;
- the chances of success are relatively predictable;
- prefiling investigative work was conducted by governmental agencies or others, so that the lawyers’ foundational work is minimal; and
- the bidding process does not directly conflict with statutory or policy goals.

Bidding remains an experimental approach to selecting counsel and establishing presumptive fee levels.<sup>861</sup>

See generally Alan Hirsch & Diane Sheehy, Awarding Attorneys’ Fees and Managing Fee Litigation 99–101 (Federal Judicial Center 1994); Steven A. Burns, Note, Setting Class Action Attorneys’ Fees: Reform Efforts Raise Ethical Concerns, 6 Geo. J. Legal Ethics 1161 (1993).

860. For examples of fee structures that were used in the bidding cases, see Hooper & Leary, supra note 859, at 34–45, reprinted in 209 F.R.D. at 561–73 (documenting key features of the various bidding approaches used in all twelve bidding cases identified in this descriptive study).

861. See generally Hooper & Leary, supra note 859; Third Circuit 2001 Task Force Report, supra note 856.

Cases in which liability is relatively clear and the amount of damages relatively predictable may be particularly good candidates for ex ante fee setting. Even if there is no court-ordered competition, a court may consider asking counsel to submit fee proposals to help analyze which application is best able to represent the class. In any case in which the judge does not appoint as class counsel the attorneys who investigated and filed the case, those attorneys may be entitled to compensation based on work performed. See section 14.12.

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 mandates an “empowered-plaintiff” approach to appointment of counsel in securities class actions.<sup>862</sup> This statute-based model provides that “[t]he most adequate plaintiff shall, subject to the approval of the court, select and retain counsel to represent the class.”<sup>863</sup> Section 31.3 provides a useful analogy for similar class actions brought by sophisticated plaintiffs with large losses or sizeable claims.

The order that appoints counsel might specify some of the criteria the judge expects to use in determining a fee award. The order can include provisions that will affect the fees ex ante<sup>864</sup> as part of the appointment process, even in jurisdictions that require a searching and detailed ex post review of the fee award at the end of the case. For example, the court can clarify whether it will use the percentage or lodestar method or a combination of the two in calculating fees. The judge can also specify terms that may reduce duplicative work, unnecessary hours, and unnecessary costs, such as agreements on the numbers of lawyers who may appear at depositions or agreements on the types of permissible expenses. See section 14.211. With the percentage-of-fund method for calculating attorney fee awards, such detailed limitations are less important since the maximum fee award is fixed at a reasonable percentage of the class recovery, no matter how many lawyers work to produce it. Even under a percentage-of-fund approach, however, consider controlling litigation

862. Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, Pub. L. No. 104-67, 109 Stat. 737 (codified as amended at 15 U.S.C. §§ 77z-1, 78u-4 to 78u-5 (2000)). For a discussion of the underpinnings of the empowered plaintiff model, see generally Elliott J. Weiss & John S. Beckerman, Let the Money Do the Monitoring: How Institutional Investors Can Reduce Agency Costs in Securities Class Actions, 104 Yale L.J. 2053 (1995).

863. 15 U.S.C. §§ 77z-1(a)(3)(B)(v), 78u-4(a)(3)(B)(v) (2000).

864. At least one court of appeals has expressed a preference for establishing the terms of appointment ex ante. See In re Synthroid Mktg. Litig., 264 F.3d 712, 718–19 (7th Cir. 2001) (“The best time to determine [a market] rate is the beginning of the case, not the end . . .”). Another court of appeals has ruled that ex ante consideration of the terms of appointing counsel is not a substitute for ex post review of fees that were calculated using a formula established at the outset of the litigation. In re Cendant Corp. Prides Litig., 243 F.3d 722, 736–37 (3d Cir. 2001).

expenses that would ordinarily be deducted from the award to the class before fees are calculated. Many courts use the lodestar method as a cross-check on the reasonableness of the fee awarded under a percentage-of-fund approach. See section 14.122.

If no applicant would provide adequate representation, the judge may refuse to certify the class. If the class appears otherwise certifiable, however, refusal to certify solely on a finding of inadequate representation is very problematic. One alternative is to allow a reasonable time period for other attorneys to seek appointment.

21.273 Procedures for Appointment

If only one lawyer seeks appointment as class counsel, or if the parties agree who should be class counsel or lead class counsel, the application is generally submitted as part of the certification motion. If competing applications are likely, a reasonable period after commencement of the action should be allowed for attorneys to file class counsel applications. Competing applications are likely where more than one class action has been filed or other attorneys have filed individual actions on behalf of members of the proposed class. To facilitate comparison among applications, consider ordering applicants to follow a common format designed to elicit information about the court's appointment criterion. Any order of appointment should include a statement of the reasons for the appointment. Section 10.2 considers appointment of liaison counsel and committees of counsel in complex class action cases or cases resulting from the consolidation of different classes or subclasses.

21.28 Interlocutory Appeals of Certification Decisions

Rule 23(f) provides that a court of appeals may permit parties to appeal a district court order granting or denying class certification if application to the court of appeals is made within ten days after entry of the order. An appeal does not stay proceedings in the district court unless the district judge or court of appeals so orders. Whether to grant an interlocutory appeal lies within the discretion of the court of appeals. The reported opinions produce a rough consensus<sup>865</sup> that interlocutory review should not be granted unless one or
